

Arches National Park

2-3 Day Deluxe Itinerary

Editor's Note

Arches National Park is home to more than 2,000 natural arches. They form from narrow sandstone 'fins' and them is truly amazing. It's easy to see why this is an incredibly popular park.

With popularity comes people, however. There is only one road through the park, which can add to the congestion at popular sites. It can be difficult to know the best way to beat the crowds, and the best places and times to view the most popular arches.

This is what this itinerary planner is here for.

Follow this detailed plan, while making choices along the way, and you will have the perfect 2-day itinerary tailored to your needs but without the stress and hassle of planning from scratch.

If you get tickets or a permit for Fiery Furnace, turn this into a 3-day itinerary!

Enjoy your trip to Arches National Park!

PARK OVERVIEW

Getting Your Bearings

There is only one entrance to Arches National Park, which is on UT-191, just five miles from Moab. The Visitor Center is almost immediately after you enter.

From there, the road climbs up a short hill and into the main part of the park. There is one road through the park - the 22-mile scenic drive. A couple of short roads are offshoots off the main road. Devil's Garden Campground, the only accommodation inside the park, is the far end of the road.

Arches National Park is divided into several sections. You'll first pass Park Avenue, then drive past the Petrified Dunes. Soon after Balanced Rock is a sideroad to the Windows section. Back on the main road, you'll dip down into Salt Valley before coming to the other sideroad, which goes to Delicate Arch. The main road continues past Fiery Furnace and on to Devil's Garden.

TIPS FOR VISITING

Entrance Fee

Visit the NPS website for the latest fees. If you plan to visit more than a couple of parks in a year, I recommend buying an America The Beautiful Pass.

Getting There

The major gateway city is Moab, and this is where this itinerary assumes you are based. The nearest airport is the small Canyonlands Regional Airport, 18 miles from Moab. Grand Junction Regional Airport is 1 hour 45 minutes away. The nearest major airport is Salt Lake City International Airport, which is 3 hours 45 minutes away.

>>> Click here to book your rental car

Due to its proximity to Canyonlands National Park, many people combine a trip to both parks. It's also common to create a bigger road trip and visit all Utah's national parks (the other three are Bryce Canyon, Zion and Capitol Reef), which I recommend. Mesa Verde National Park is 2 hours away, Monument Valley is 2 hours 45 minutes away, Page AZ is 4.5 hours away and Grand Canyon's South Rim is 5.5 hours away. So, there are limitless possibilities to create an epic Southwest itinerary.

If you're visiting Grand Canyon, Zion or Bryce Canyon National Parks, you can get a detailed itinerary for each park. Use code ARNP for a 20% discount off each of them.

Getting Around

You will definitely need a vehicle to get around the park. However, you do not need a high clearance vehicle or 4WD/ AWD for anywhere in the park and there are no restrictions for RVs or trailers.

HOW TO USE THIS ITINERARY

This itinerary planner is designed to balance taking away the overwhelm with still giving you the freedom to create an itinerary that suits your interests and comfort level.

Please read all this information carefully so you can take full advantage of the itinerary planner.

Hikes

Where appropriate, several hike options are given, based on varying levels of difficulty and interest. In this case, you can choose the hike that best suits you.

Description

Includes don't-miss sights and sites. Where this includes wildlife, keep in mind that although these are common places to see wildlife, wild animals don't always show up on cue, so I can't promise you will see any animals.

Meals

Meal suggestions are given. Detailed options are provided in the Dining Guide.

Driving Directions

Detailed driving directions are provided for each day. I have indicated where a road is closed to RVs and/ or trailers.

Things To Note

Includes any warnings, important information, considerations or closures.

Highlights

There are great views throughout the park, but these are especially famous viewpoints and/ or sights.

Less-Active Options

To really get the most out of the national parks, you need to leave the roads, but that doesn't mean you can't have an awesome time if you can't or prefer not to hike.

Non-hiking options are great for those with limited mobility or fitness.

Some of these suggestions involve no walking at all, while others may involve short distances on flat or mostly flat paths.

Accommodations

This itinerary is based around you staying in nearby Moab.

Accommodation options in Moab are provided in the Accommodations Guide. However, I recommend staying inside the park if possible and you will also find information about the only campground inside the park in the Accommodations Guide.

If you do stay somewhere other than Moab, read the Adjusting Your Schedule section so you can easily adapt your schedule based on where you stay.

Recommended

This symbol indicates that this is my recommended choice. However, you can still choose whichever option best suits your comfort level and interests.

The itinerary is timed for the best chance of getting a parking spot, the best light and the best way to avoid the crowds as much as possible.

Consequently, the itinerary has you getting up early in the morning. Arches National Park is extremely popular and by getting into the park early, you will avoid having to wait for a parking spot at the most popular locations. The national parks are more popular than ever, so the earlier you get there, the better, so if you started even earlier, that would be even better.

Although Moab is the most logical place to stay outside the park, you may choose to stay somewhere else nearby. If you do, see the Adjusting Your Schedule for timing changes.

The itinerary has a detailed breakdown of suggested activities, with alternatives or flexible options in the morning and afternoon. Each of the alternate options take about the same length of time, so you can choose one, then move on to the next activity no matter which option you chose.

You can do the days in either order, but I strongly suggest sticking to the order of events in the schedule both days. They are arranged and timed intentionally so that you get the most out of your trip.

A note about Day 3: You will notice that the only morning activity on Day 3 is the Fiery Furnace hike. If you can get tickets, and are up for the challenge, I highly recommend this hike. If you aren't interested or can't get tickets or a permit for Fiery Furnace, then end the itinerary after 2 days. If you do go to Fiery Furnace, round out Day 3 with a trip to nearby Dead Horse Point State Park. This is also an option for Day 2 afternoon, but if you're going to Fiery Furnace, which is a challenging hike, I'm assuming that you like hiking and chose the Broken Arch-Tapestry Arch hike on Day 2 afternoon. If you can only get Fiery Furnace tickets on Day 1 or 2 of your time in Arches National Park instead of Day 3, just swap the days around in your itinerary.

Note that the maps here are designed to give you an overview of the park and where to go, but are no replacement for a detailed map, especially of the hiking trails. You can pick up maps at a Visitor Center or buy a very detailed printed topographic map there or before you go.

ITINERARY UPDATES

This itinerary is reviewed annually, but is not updated in real time, throughout each year. However, I want you to have the best trip possible and for this itinerary to be as useful as possible. So, I do provide updates on changing conditions such as road works, facilities closures, trail closures, etc. that may affect part of this itinerary.

CHECK FOR ITINERARY UPDATES HERE

I update this regularly, so I recommend checking frequently, especially as your trip gets closer.

THE DAY BEFORE

You will arrive in Moab. Check the Accommodation Guide to find a place to stay in Moab.

Use the Dining Guide to find somewhere for dinner in Moab and get supplies for a picnic lunch tomorrow so you don't need to leave and re-enter the park in the middle of the day.

DAY 1 AT A GLANCE

You'll start the day by seeing the most famous arch in the park - either up close on a 3-mile hike or from an easily accessible (but more distant) viewpoint. You'll then explore the Windows section before having a picnic lunch.

In the afternoon, you'll see - or hike through - Park Avenue, and visit the Visitor Center.

DAY 1

EARLY MORNING: 7:00AM | 8:00AM - 10:00AM

Delicate Arch is the most famous arch in the entire park (and there are over 2,000 of them). The freestanding arch even appears on Utah's license plate. Even though you've seen dozens of photos of it, nothing quite prepares you for how breathtaking it is in person.

It's also the most popular arch, so it gets very crowded. This is why you'll head there first thing.

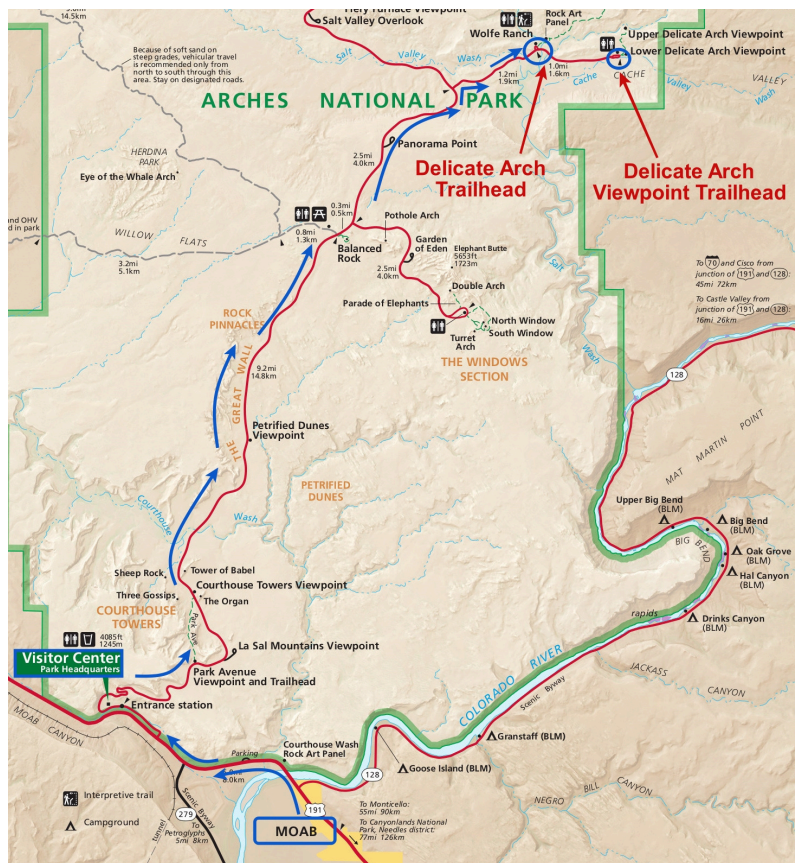

Breakfast

Have breakfast at your hotel or campground before leaving.

DIRECTIONS: Moab - Delicate Arch

From Moab, take Highway UT-191 north and cross the Colorado River as you exit town. 1.8 miles after the bridge, you'll see the entrance to Arches National Park on the right. Continue straight for 11.5 miles until you get to Delicate Arch Road on your right. Turn right and after just over a mile, you'll see the parking for the Delicate Arch Trailhead [Option A] on your left.

If you continue for another mile, you'll come to the Delicate Arch Viewpoint Trailhead [Option B] parking on your left.

DAY 1

EARLY MORNING: 7:00AM - 10:00AM

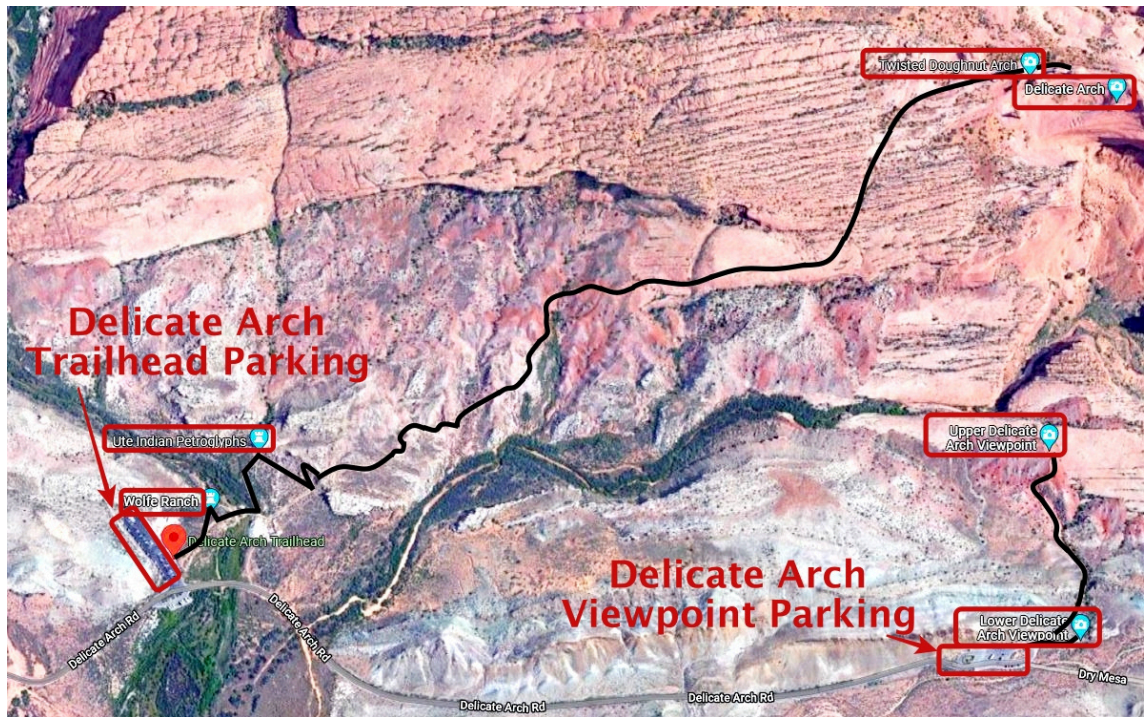

OPTION A: Hike to Delicate Arch

Delicate Arch Hike 7:30AM

To get to Delicate Arch, there is a 3-mile round trip hike that's rated as moderate. It's all uphill going there and downhill on the return.

Soon after the trail begins, there's a short side trail off to the left that takes you to Wolfe Ranch. The tiny one-room wood cabin was built in 1906 and, as you peer in the window, it gives a real glimpse into the harsh life of the early pioneers. You can learn more about its history on the NPS website.

The trail continues over a small footbridge over Salt Wash. About 0.2 miles in, there's a sign to the Petroglyph Interpretive Trail to the left. Take this for about 0.1 miles and you'll come to a cool panel of rock art that depicts a hunting scene. It was carved in the mid-1600's by the Ute and/ or Paiute people.

DAY 1

EARLY MORNING: 7:00AM - 10:00AM

Delicate Arch Hike 7:30AM

The trail joins the main trail and then continues up a long stretch of open sliprock. This is very exposed and hot in the summer. Because you're doing this hike in the morning, you'll be avoiding the main heat of the day.

At the top, the trail winds through an area of chert (a hard, shiny rock used by Native Americans for tools and weapons). There are signs, but at some places, the trail is not easy to see, so keep a careful eye out.

At the end, the trail goes along a short ledge, hugging a cliff with a steep drop off on the left. Keep an eye out for a tiny arch, Twisted Donut Arch, on your right.

Then, you round a corner and BAM! One of the most breathtaking views you will ever see in your life. Photos do not do Delicate Arch justice. It stands on the edge of a bowl, with a sheer drop off on the far side and is nothing short of stunning.

Spend half an hour there, exploring the area and enjoying the view.

DAY 1

EARLY MORNING: 8:00AM - 10:00AM

OPTION B: Delicate Arch Viewpoint

To get to Delicate Arch, you need to do a 3-mile round trip hike that's rated as moderate and is all uphill going there [Option A]. If you prefer not to do that level of activity, you can still see the arch, though it is a more distant view.

Wolfe Ranch & Petroglyphs 8:30AM

Start the morning at the Delicate Arch trailhead, as there are a couple of small but interesting historic sites very close to the trailhead.

Soon after the trail begins, there's a short side trail off to the left that takes you to Wolfe Ranch. The tiny one-room wood cabin was built in 1906 and, as you peer in the window, it gives a real glimpse into the harsh life of the early pioneers. You can learn more about its history on the NPS website.

The trail continues over a small footbridge over Salt Wash. About 0.2 miles in, there's a sign to the Petroglyph Interpretive Trail to the left. Take this for about 0.1 miles and you'll come to a cool panel of rock art that depicts a hunting scene. It was carved in the mid-1600's by the Ute and/ or Paiute people.

When you're ready, head back to your vehicle and drive 1 mile further down the road to the Delicate Arch Viewpoint Trail.

DAY 1

EARLY MORNING: 7:00AM - 10:00AM

Delicate Arch Viewpoint 9:20AM

There are two viewpoints. The Lower Viewpoint Trail is a very easy, accessible 100-yard walk from the parking lot to a spot where you can look through Delicate Arch. Note that the arch is 0.75 miles/ 1.2 km away so binoculars and/ or a zoom camera lens will help.

The Upper Viewpoint Trail is a little harder and involves a short 0.25-mile but uphill climb. There are some steps, and the trail then winds up a sliprock ridge. The view of Delicate Arch is closer, but still distant. The arch is often nicely lit with sunlight in the morning.

DAY 1

MORNING - AFTERNOON: 10:00AM - 2:00PM

Drive to Windows 10:00AM

After returning to the trailhead, where there are restrooms, drive to the Windows section of the park.

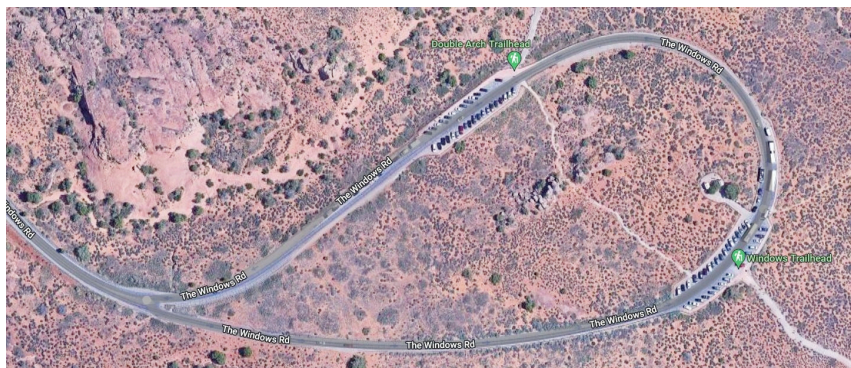

DIRECTIONS: Delicate Arch - Windows

Return the way you came along Delicate Arch Road, then turn left back on to the main Arches NP Road. Drive another 2.5 miles and then turn left on to Windows Road. Drive for another 2.3 miles until you get to the end of the road.

The road ends at a loop. The upper loop, which you come to first, is closest to the North and South Windows. There are restrooms here too. If you continue on around the loop to the lower section, you're closer to Double Arch. A short 0.1-mile trail connects the two. I recommend parking in the first available spot you find. You'll walk to all sections, so it really doesn't matter whether you park on the upper or lower loop.

DAY 1

MORNING - AFTERNOON: 10:00AM - 2:00PM

Double Arch 10:15AM

From the lower loop parking area, head down the smooth dirt path for 0.25 miles (each way) to Double Arch. It's fairly flat and easy, but there's no shade, so it gets very hot in summer.

Not only is Double Arch the tallest arch in the park, but there are also two arches together. You can see both of the arches well from the end of the flat trail. However, if you're feeling adventurous, you can climb up closer to them, though that does involve some scrambling up rocks.

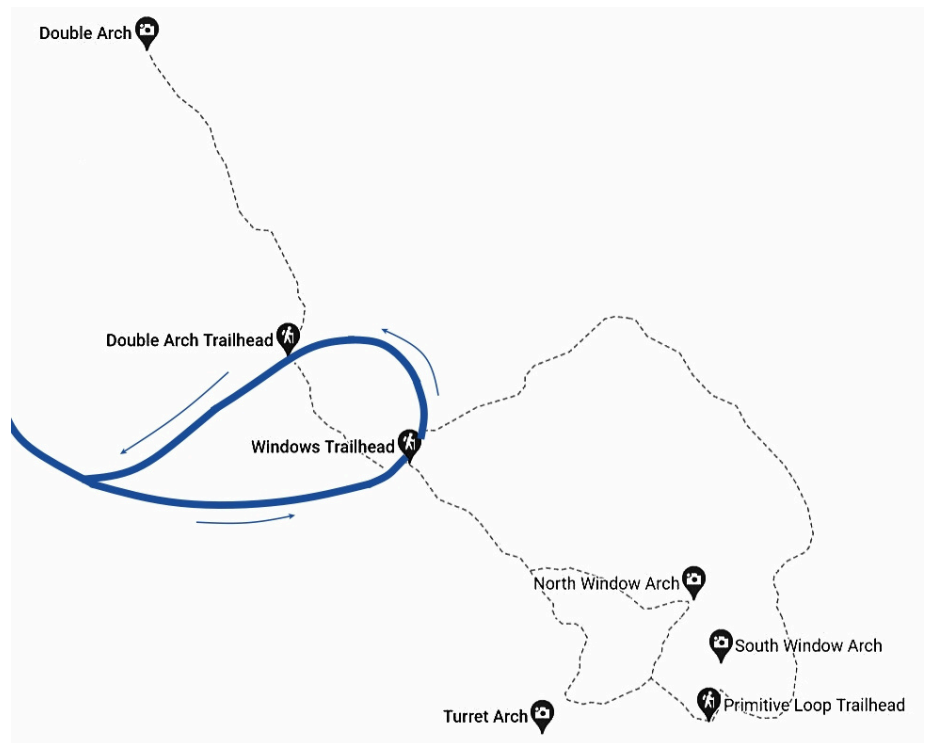

The Windows 11:15AM

From the lower loop, follow the short 0.1-mile path that connects to the upper loop and the start of the Windows Trail. North and South Windows are two large arches next to each other. The first 100 yards or so is paved and flat, then there are some steps and a rougher surface. The path diverges after a while and to the trail is Turret Arch goes to the right while the Windows are to the left.

I recommend going to Turret Arch first. This is named after the turret-like pillar next to the arch. It is less visited than the Windows, even though it is only a couple of hundred yards away. There is a bit of an incline with some steps. When you go through the arch, turn around and

DAY 1

MORNING - AFTERNOON: 10:00AM - 2:00PM

The Windows 11:15AM

look back to see the Windows framed through the arch.

A short trail connects Turret Arch to the Windows. The arch on the left is North Window, and this is the most popular. It's a reasonably easy scramble up from the trail to the arch itself. You can stand inside the arch and look out over the park.

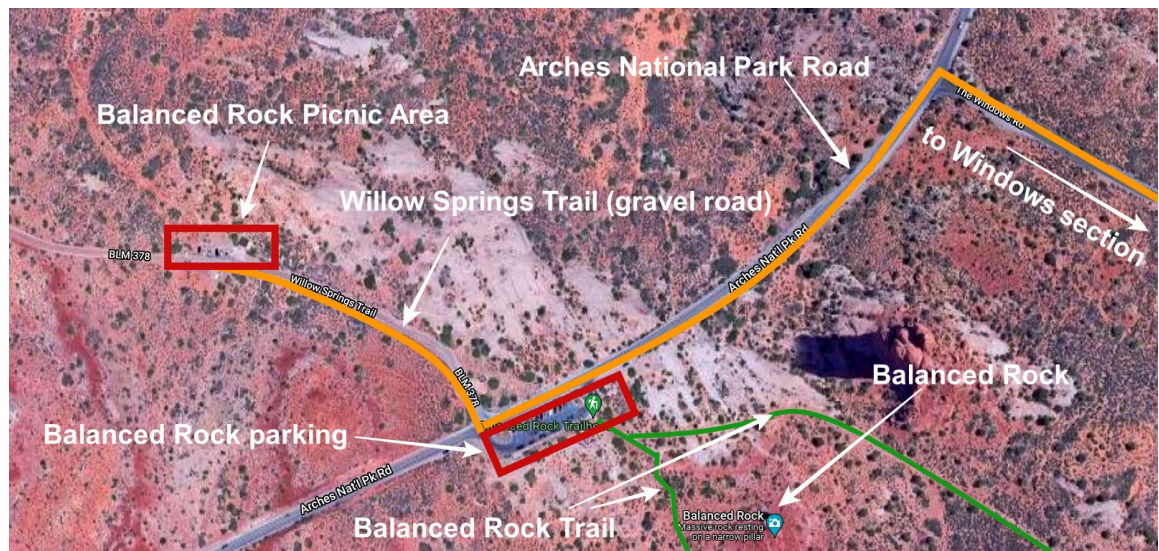

From the North Window, continue along the trail to the South Window.

You can go back the way you came, or you can return from South Window to the parking area via a primitive trail that goes behind the two windows. There are cairns marking the primitive trail. Few people take the primitive trail, so it's a way to escape the crowds, but if you prefer, it's easy enough to return on the main path directly to the parking area (without needing to go via Turret Arch).

Balanced Rock Picnic Area 12:30PM

Head to the picnic area near Balanced Rock and have a picnic in the park to avoid having to go all the way back to Moab and then deal with re-entering the park. There are multiple picnic tables, a covered canopy, vault toilets, and spectacular views of Salt Valley and Balanced Rock.

DAY 1

MORNING - AFTERNOON: 10:00AM - 2:00PM

DIRECTIONS: Windows - Balanced Rock Picnic Area

Follow the loop around and head back along the Windows Road. When you get to the main Arches National Park Road, turn left and the Balanced Rock parking area is on your left 0.2 miles further along. You can either park here or turn right on the dirt road opposite the parking area. This is Willow Springs Trail. The Balanced Rock Picnic Area is another 0.2 miles up this road, on the right.

There is a very small parking area there. I recommend parking at Balanced Rock and walking to the picnic area (about 5 minutes) if you can, as you will be walking around Balanced Rock after lunch anyway, but if you prefer, you can try to get a parking spot at the picnic area itself.

Balanced Rock 1:30PM

Balanced Rock is a large boulder that looks like it is balancing on another pillar of rock. It stands 128 feet tall, so it's hard to miss. You can see it from the parking lot, but it's worth walking around it to see it from different angles. A 0.3-mile trail that's paved and mostly flat goes around Balanced Rock. The trail splits after a couple of hundred feet and creates a loop around the rock. Either direction is fine.

DAY 1

AFTERNOON: 2:00PM - 4:45PM

OPTION A: Park Avenue Hike

Park Avenue 2:15PM

Park Avenue is a short canyon between two cliffs of sandstone that gets its name because of its similarity to the famous New York City avenue surrounded by a row of tall buildings on both sides.

A 1-mile (each way) hike goes down into the valley, so the cliffs are all around you. The trail goes between Park Avenue Viewpoint and Courthouse Towers. There is a parking lot at both ends, so you can start at either end. The official trailhead and most common starting point is the Park Avenue Viewpoint.

There tends to be fewer people starting at the Courthouse Towers – and the uphill/ downhill section is in the middle rather than ending with an uphill walk, which you will if you start/ end at Park Avenue Viewpoint.

Driving from Balanced Rock, you'll come to Courthouse Towers first. If there's parking there, I'd grab a spot and hike from there. Otherwise, head to the Park Avenue Viewpoint a short distance down the road. If you have someone who isn't hiking but can drive, they could drop you off at one end and pick you up at the other end, saving you hiking back.

From the Park Avenue Viewpoint, there's a short but pretty steep descent into the valley, on a well-marked trail. After this steep section, the rest of the hike is fairly flat and for the most part follows a stony wash. Near the end, there are some enormous rectangular pillars (called the Courthouse). If you look up to the left, you can see the only arch on this hike – Baby Arch. It's high up at the bottom of a large cliff and, as the name implies, is small.

DIRECTIONS: Balanced Rock Picnic Area - Park Avenue

Continue along the main Arches National Park Road heading back towards the entrance. You'll first come to the Courthouse Towers Viewpoint. The parking lot is on your left and you have to cross the

DAY 1

AFTERNOON: 2:00PM - 4:45PM

DIRECTIONS: Balanced Rock Picnic Area - Park Avenue
road (carefully) to get to the trailhead.

Continue along the main road. A further mile along, you'll pass the La Sal Mountains Viewpoint on your left (worth a quick stop), then the Park Avenue Viewpoint/ Trailhead parking is another 0.4 miles further along, on your right. From the parking area, it's a very short walk to the official viewpoint and the start of the hike down into Park Avenue.

Visitor Center 4:00PM

The Visitor Center is at the bottom of the hill, near the entrance. It has interesting interactive exhibits about the geology and ecology of the national park. Pick up your Fiery Furnace tickets or permits if you have reservations for them, get a map, and shop at the store. There's also a 150-seat theater showing movies about the park.

Look out for the bighorn sheep, raven and lizard sculptures. They were commissioned especially for the Visitor Center and are by the artist Matthew Gray Palmer. The Visitor Center is open every day except Christmas Day.

DIRECTIONS: Park Avenue - Visitor Center

Keep driving towards the park entrance. You'll drive down the hill, then the Visitor Center is on your left, 2.5 miles from Park Avenue. It gets crowded, but the parking lot is large and at this time of day, you shouldn't have problems finding a parking spot.

Dinner 5:30PM

Use the Dining Guide to find a place for dinner in Moab.

DAY 1

AFTERNOON: 2:00PM - 4:45PM

OPTION B: Scenic Drive to Viewpoints

Garden of Eden 2:05PM

The Garden Of Eden is a less-visited viewpoint that is underrated. There are pillars and fins that will one day become arches, baby arches being born (slowly) and medium-sized arches that have yet to mature into the grand arches that most people search out.

You can see the cluster from the parking lot, but if you are feeling a little adventurous, you can also walk among them for a bit. There are no trails, but you can wander around easily (just avoid stepping on any of the living soil). The large stone pillar near the parking lot is Owl Rock. You may see climbers ascending the stone tower.

DIRECTIONS: Balanced Rock Picnic Area - Garden of Eden

Head back towards the Windows. Turn right on to Windows Road. A mile down the road, you'll see a sign for Garden of Eden Viewpoint on your left. The very short (0.1 miles) side road ends at the viewpoint.

Courthouse Towers 2:30PM

The Courthouse Towers are huge monolithic towers at one end of Park Avenue. Imposing structures include the Tower of Babel, a huge fin almost three hundred feet just north of the Courthouse Towers parking lot. The Organ, a 700-foot-tall sandstone fin, is the second tallest tower in Arches, and Sheep Rock is the third tallest tower in the park at 440 feet tall. If you feel like a little bit of a walk, you could cross the road and start the Park Avenue Trail, turning back before it starts climbing. on you return, look out for tiny Baby Arch up high in a sandstone cliff.

DIRECTIONS: Garden of Eden - Courthouse Towers

Turn right on to Windows Road, then left on to the main Arches National Park Road. Pass Balanced Rock and drive for another 5.5 miles. The Courthouse Towers parking lot is on your left.

DAY 1

AFTERNOON: 2:00PM - 4:45PM

Park Avenue Viewpoint 2:45PM

Park Avenue is a short canyon between two cliffs of sandstone that gets its name because of its similarity to the famous New York City avenue surrounded by a row of tall buildings on both sides.

There is a wonderful viewpoint right next to the parking lot where you can look down into the canyon. You won't see arches here, but the towering monolith and cliffs are the birthing ground for future arches and even without the park's namesake arches, the views here are stunning.

DIRECTIONS: Courthouse Towers - Park Avenue

Continue along the main road. A further mile along, you'll pass the La Sal Mountains Viewpoint on your left (worth a quick stop), then the Park Avenue Viewpoint/ Trailhead parking is another 0.4 miles further along, on your right.

Visitor Center 3:15PM

The Visitor Center is at the bottom of the hill, near the entrance. It has interesting interactive exhibits about the geology and ecology of the national park. Pick up your Fiery Furnace tickets or permits if you have reservations for them, get a map and shop at the store. There's also a 150-seat theater showing movies about the park.

Look out for the bighorn sheep, raven and lizard sculptures. They were commissioned especially for the Visitor Center and are by the artist Matthew Gray Palmer. The Visitor Center is open every day except Christmas Day.

DIRECTIONS: Park Avenue - Visitor Center

Keep driving towards the park entrance. You'll drive down the hill, then the Visitor Center is on your left, 2.5 miles from Park Avenue. It gets crowded, but the parking lot is large and at this time of day, you shouldn't have problems finding a parking spot.

DAY 1

AFTERNOON: 2:00PM - 4:45PM

Courthouse Wash Rock Art 3:45PM

At Courthouse Wash, which is just outside the national park, there are several panels with ancient rock art spanning several periods. There are pictographs (paintings on rock) and petroglyphs (carvings in rock).

It's thought that Archaic Indians first painted the long, tapered figures, and then later, Ancestral Puebloans or Utes added the bright white circular forms that resemble shields. The nearby petroglyphs were probably done by Utes.

From the parking area, walk along the paved multi-use path in the direction of Moab. You'll cross the wash. Just after you cross the bridge, there's a path on your left. There are signs and cairns (rock piles) indicating the way. The trail goes off the left a little uphill to get to the panels. Total distance is 0.6 miles return.

DIRECTIONS: Visitor Center - Courthouse Wash Rock Art

Dinner 5:30PM

Use the Dining Guide to find a place for dinner in Moab.

DAY 2 AT A GLANCE

You'll start your morning by hiking all or part of Devil's Garden (my favorite part of Arches National Park). In the afternoon, you can do another hike to see more arches or, if you prefer not to hike, head to nearby Dead Horse Point State Park for some incredible views.

DAY 2

MORNING: 6:30AM - 2:00PM

OPTION A: Hike all of Devil's Garden

Breakfast

Have breakfast at your hotel or campground before leaving.

Devil's Garden Hike 7:00AM

Devil's Garden trail, the longest trail in the park, has some of the best hiking in Arches National Park. It passes eight arches in total, goes through the fantastic Fin Canyon, and includes many aspects of the park such as dramatic sandstone fins, soaring spires and dramatic rocky landscapes.

There are three distinct sections. In this option, you'll hike them all.

Landscape Arch

The first section, to Landscape Arch, is an easy paved trail 0.9 miles each way with little elevation change. There is a short spur trail off to the right a short way into the hike that takes you to Pine Tree Arch (named after the pine tree in the middle of the arch) and Tunnel Arch, which looks like a tunnel and you only see at a distance. These add another 0.5 miles.

This section ends at Landscape Arch, which, at 306 feet, is the longest single span arch in North America. It is also incredibly thin (just 11 feet thick at its center).

DAY 2

MORNING: 6:30AM - 2:00PM

Double O Arch

The second section to Double O Arch, is moderate to strenuous. It's 2.1 miles each way from the trailhead. The trail goes over exposed narrow ridges along the tops of fins with drop offs on both sides, so is not great if you have a fear of heights. This section is definitely more difficult and includes some steep crevices where steps have been cut into the rocks. The trail is not recommended if there is lightening, snow or ice.

From Landscape Arch, head up the top of a sloped fin. After about fifteen minutes, you will come to a small sign indicating the side spur to Navajo Arch (0.3 miles) and Partition Arch (0.2 miles), which is the arch you can see way up high from the Landscape Arch viewpoint. It's worth taking this side trip, as they are both great.

Most of the trail is easy to follow, but there is one part soon after you return to the main trail where's it's easy to lose the trail. Look for the cairns! Cairns are piles of rocks that are used to indicate the way forward when the trail goes over rocks or sand, so evidence of a path disappears.

The trail goes along the top of a fairly long fin, with drops on both sides. Soon after is a very short spur to a lookout with a distant (and underwhelming) view of Black Arch. Soon after, however, there are spectacular views of Devil's Garden and Fin Canyon.

When you first get to Double O Arch, you can only see the larger arch. Keep going to see the smaller second arch below it. If you're able, climb up and through the lower arch (it's a bit of a scramble, but worth it). Then climb the path up a little and look back for a stunning view of the two arches with views through and beyond them.

Return Trail

From Double O Arch, you can either go back the way you came or take the primitive trail back, making a loop.

DAY 2

MORNING: 6:30AM - 2:00PM

Dark Angel

Before you do either, you can see a pillar off in the distance and a small sign indicating a path to Dark Angel. That pillar is Dark Angel. It's not super exciting and if you are feeling tired or hot, you could skip it, but if you have some energy, you can take the out-and-back spur trail (0.4 miles round trip) to see the rock pillar up close.

Primitive Trail

If you are feeling up for an adventure, then take the primitive trail back, which adds an extra mile. The primitive trail is rated as difficult and involves frequent scrambling, walking along a very narrow ledge on a steep rock, wading through a pool of water (that is sometimes dried up) and hiking on a less developed trail that's difficult to follow in places. The trail is only marked by cairns and logs at times, so if you're a novice hiker not used to hiking without clearly marked trails, consider carefully if you want to attempt this section. Do not attempt it if the trail is wet, icy or snowy.

From Double O Arch, the trail heads down into Fin Canyon. About 20 minutes from the start of the primitive trail, you'll come to a sign marking the 0.25-mile (round trip) spur trail to Private Arch on the right.

About 25 minutes after being back on the main trail there's a section where you need to skirt along the edge of a fin. The cliff is fairly steep and the foothold is narrow. This is the scariest section and not safe when the rock is wet or icy.

The trail eventually connects back to the main trail, a short distance from Landscape Arch (closer to the trailhead).

For a full trail description and more information, read my detailed Guide to Devil's Garden Trail.

DIRECTIONS: Moab - Devil's Garden

From Moab, take Highway UT-191 north and cross the Colorado River as you exit town. 1.8 miles after the bridge, you'll see the entrance to

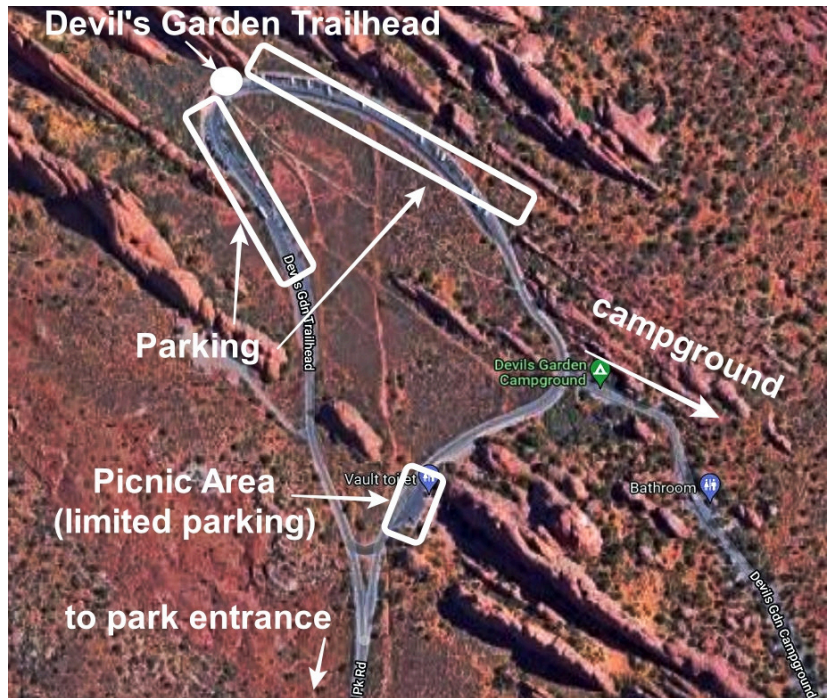

DAY 2

MORNING: 6:30AM - 2:00PM

DIRECTIONS: Moab - Devil's Garden

Arches National Park on the right. Continue straight for 22 miles until the end of the road. The road forks and become one way. Soon after the fork, you'll pass the picnic area in your right, then the road to the campground. The road loops around to the left and you'll come to a long section with parking. Park wherever you can. The road loops back to the two-way main road.

Lunch 1:00PM

Either walk to the Devil's Garden Picnic Area and have a picnic lunch there OR drive to Moab and have lunch there*. Use the Dining Guide to find somewhere to eat in Moab.

*If you're planning to hike to Broken and Tapestry Arches in the afternoon [Option A], stay in the park and have a picnic lunch. If you're going to Dead Horse Point State Park [Option B], you can either picnic in Arches NP or head to Moab for lunch.

DAY 2

MORNING: 7:30AM - 2:00PM

OPTION B: Hike Devil's Garden to Partition & Navajo Arches

Breakfast

Have breakfast at your hotel or campground before leaving.

Devil's Garden Hike 8:00AM

Devil's Garden trail, the longest trail in the park, has some of the best hiking in Arches National Park. It passes eight arches in total, goes through the fantastic Fin Canyon, and includes many aspects of the park such as dramatic sandstone fins, soaring spires and dramatic rocky landscapes.

There are three distinct sections. In this option, you'll hike 1.5 of them.

Landscape Arch

The first section, to Landscape Arch, is an easy paved trail 0.9 miles each way with little elevation change. There is a short spur trail off to the right a short way into the hike that takes you to Pine Tree Arch (named after the pine tree in the middle of the arch) and Tunnel Arch, which looks like a tunnel and you only see at a distance. These add another 0.5 miles.

This section ends at Landscape Arch, which, at 306 feet, is the longest single span arch in North America. It is also incredibly thin (just 11 feet thick at its center).

DAY 2

MORNING: 7:30AM - 2:00PM

To Navajo and Partition Arches

The second section of the Devil's Garden trail goes to Double O Arch and is rated as moderate to strenuous. This section of the trail goes over exposed narrow ridges along the tops of fins with drop offs on both sides, so is not great if you have a fear of heights. Option B, however, skips the scariest sections. Rather than going all the way to Double O Arch, you'll instead go to the closer and more accessible Navajo and Partition Arches (1.8 miles in total), returning the way you came.

From Landscape Arch, head up the top of a sloped fin. After about ten minutes (0.3 miles), you will come to a small sign indicating the side spur on the left to Navajo Arch and Partition Arch. Take this.

After another 0.1 mile, the trail splits. Partition Arch is 0.2 miles down the trail on the left. This is the arch that you can see from the Landscape Arch viewpoint. You can look through the arch and see the national park spread out below.

Return back to where the trail splits and then take the other trail to Navajo Arch (0.3 miles). This cave-like arch is hidden around a corner and feels secret and secluded.

Return back to the main trail, then turn right to go back to Landscape Arch.

DIRECTIONS: Moab - Devil's Garden

From Moab, take Highway UT-191 north and cross the Colorado River as you exit town. 1.8 miles after the bridge, you'll see the entrance to Arches National Park on the right. Continue straight for 22 miles until the end of the road. The road forks and become one way.

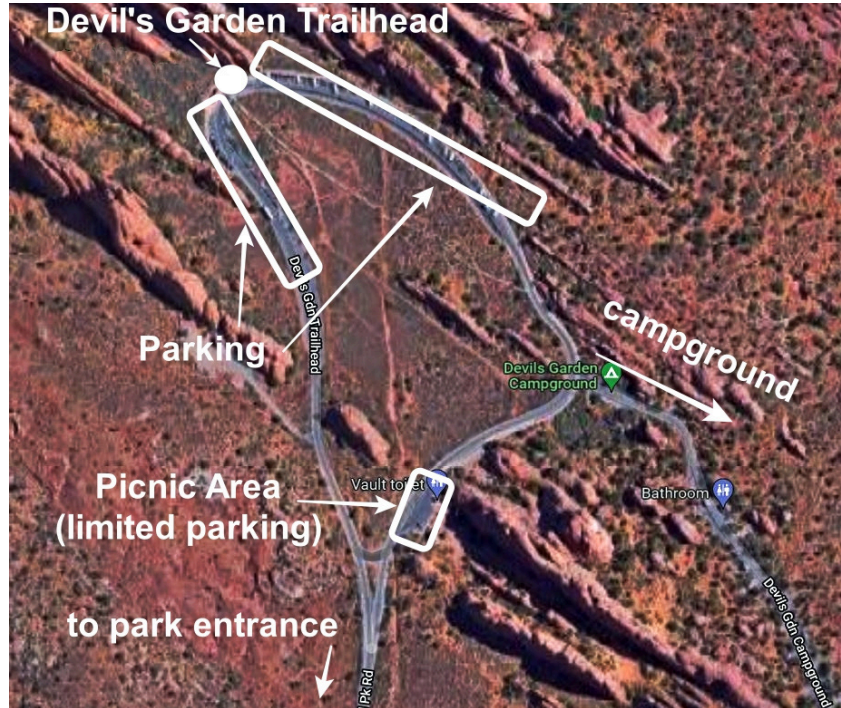

Soon after the fork, you'll pass the picnic area in your right, then the road to the campground. The road loops around to the left and you'll come to a long section with parking.

DAY 2

MORNING: 7:30AM - 2:00PM

Park wherever you can. The road loops back to the two-way main road.

Lunch 12:00PM

Either walk to the Devil's Garden Picnic Area and have a picnic lunch there OR drive to Moab and have lunch there*. Use the Dining Guide to find somewhere to eat in Moab.

*If you're planning to hike to Broken and Tapestry Arches in the afternoon [Option A], stay in the park and have a picnic lunch. If you're going to Dead Horse Point State Park [Option B], you can either picnic in Arches National Park or head to Moab for lunch.

DAY 2

MORNING: 8:00AM - 2:00PM

OPTION C: Hike Devil's Garden to Landscape Arch

Breakfast

Have breakfast at your hotel or campground before leaving.

Devil's Garden Hike to Landscape Arch 8:30AM

Devil's Garden trail, the longest trail in the park, has some of the best hiking in Arches National Park. There are three distinct sections. In this option, you'll hike the first and easiest section. You'll see three arches, including the longest arch in the park.

The section to Landscape Arch is an easy paved trail 0.9 miles each way with little elevation change. There is a short spur trail off to the right a short way into the hike that takes you to Pine Tree Arch (named after the pine tree in the middle of the arch) and Tunnel Arch, which looks like a tunnel and you only see at a distance. These add another 0.5 miles.

This section ends at Landscape Arch, which, at 306 feet, is the longest single span arch in North America. It is also incredibly thin (just 11 feet thick at its center). If you look up to the right, you'll see another arch as well. This is Partition Arch.

When you're ready, return the way you came.

DAY 2

MORNING: 8:00AM - 2:00PM

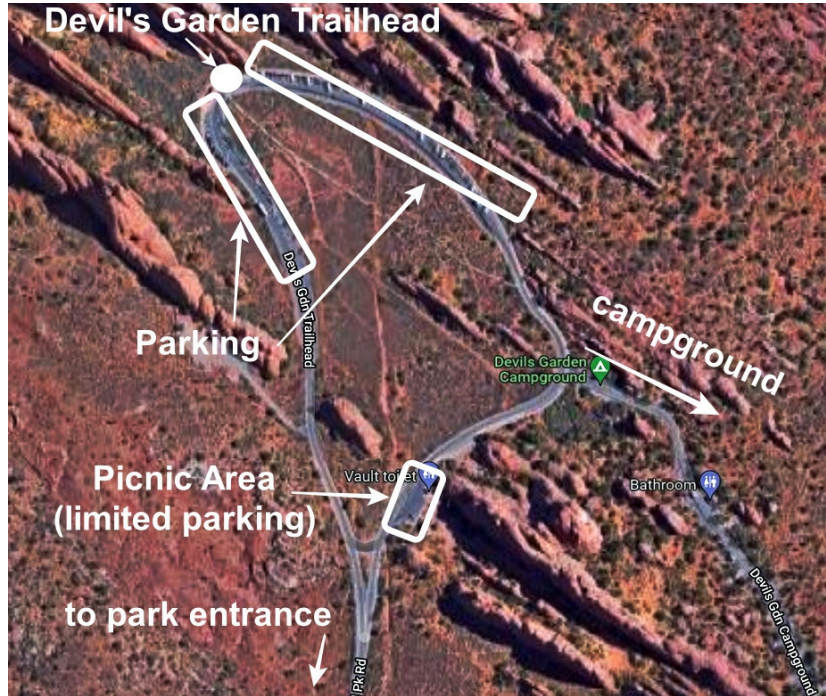

DIRECTIONS: Moab - Devil's Garden

From Moab, take Highway UT-191 north and cross the Colorado River as you exit town. 1.8 miles after the bridge, you'll see the entrance to

Arches National Park on the right. Continue straight for 22 miles until the end of the road. The road forks and become one way. Soon after the fork, you'll pass the picnic area in your right, then the road to the campground. The road loops around to the left and you'll come to a long section with parking. Park wherever you can. The road loops back to the two-way main road.

Skyline Arch 10:30AM

You can see Skyline Arch from the parking lot (and see the back of it from the Devil's Garden Campground) - it's high up at the top of a cliff - but a 0.4-mile (return) trail takes you to the base of the cliff that the arch is in. Until 1940, the arch was half blocked. Then in 1940, the blocked half tore loose and tumbled down to the bottom. The short trail ends at the rock fall. Seeing the huge boulders is impressive. The trail is sand, but short and mostly flat.

DIRECTIONS: Devil's Garden - Skyline Arch

From the Devil's Garden parking, keep going around the loop. The road rejoins the main two-way Arches National Park Road. Skyline Arch is 0.5 miles down the road, on the left. There's a small parking area.

DAY 2

MORNING: 8:00AM - 2:00PM

Sand Dune Arch 11:00AM

A 0.4-mile (return), flat trail takes you from the trailhead to Sand Dune Arch. The trail crosses a grassy area, then heads through a narrow crevice between two fins. This opens up into a small, enclosed area surrounded by rock walls and covered in soft sand. You'll probably wonder where the arch is. Then, after you go a short distance, you'll see it on the right with a small sand dune at its base.

This is a shady area that is good for young kids on hot days. It is fairly small, though, so it can get crowded.

DIRECTIONS: Skyline Arch - Sand Dune Arch

From the Skyline Arch parking, continue along the main road, heading away from Devil's Garden. Sand Dune Arch is 0.7 miles down the road on the left. There's a small parking area.

Lunch 11:30AM

Either drive back to Devil's Garden and have lunch at the Devil's Garden Picnic Area OR drive to Moab and have lunch there*. Use the Dining Guide to find somewhere to eat in Moab.

*If you're planning to hike to Broken and Tapestry Arches in the afternoon [Option A], stay in the park and have a picnic lunch. If you're going to Dead Horse Point State Park [Option B], head to Moab for lunch.

DAY 2

AFTERNOON: 2:00PM - 5:30PM

OPTION A: Tapestry Arch, Broken Arch, Sand Dune Arch

This hike goes to three wonderful arches, but not many people do this hike, so you'll be away from the crowds.

To get to the trailhead, leave your car parked at the Devil's Garden Trailhead parking and walk back to the junction with the campground. Then go into the campground until you get to the toilet block near Site #40. This is the start of the trail. There's a sign indicating it clearly.

Tapestry Arch | Broken Arch | Sand Dune Arch 2:15PM

The trail winds through open blackbrush and sage flats. After about 0.2 miles, there is a sign for the trail to Tapestry Arch to the left. This winds down for about 0.1 miles until to get the arch. Tapestry Arch is a large arch with three other arches forming next to it in the same fin. You can clamber up to the base of the arch and stand inside it (climbing on the top of arches is not permitted).

Head back to the main trail and turn left to go to Broken Arch. The trail continues mostly through soft sand for 0.5 miles until you get to Broken Arch. Despite its name, the arch is not actually broken, but a crack in the top makes it look like it is, and one day it will be, I expect.

To continue on the loop, climb through Broken Arch, as the trail continues on the other side. Another 0.2 miles along, you'll come to the junction with the side trail to Sand Dune Arch. You have a couple of options. If you're feeling tired or went to Sand Dune Arch already, you can keep going straight and head back to the campground. It's another 0.5 miles, heading up over rock, so you're out of the sand for most of the remainder of the trail.

DAY 2

AFTERNOON: 2:00PM - 5:30PM

If you want to go to Sand Dune Arch but are feeling tired, you can always drive to the Sand Dune Arch trailhead, where a really short trail goes from the road to the arch. You'll arrive at the campground between sites #50 and #51. Head up the road and walk back to your vehicle.

Or, if you still have some energy, take the sandy side trail 0.3 miles each way to Sand Dune Arch, then return and finish the loop back to the campground.

At the end, the trail goes through a narrow crevice between two fins. This opens up into a small, enclosed area surrounded by rock walls and covered in soft sand. You'll probably wonder where the arch is. Then, after you go a short distance, you'll see it on the right with a small sand dune at its base.

Fiery Furnace Overlook 4:25PM

Fiery Furnace is another section of the park. It's a labyrinth of narrow passageways between tall fins. It gets its name not from the heat (in fact, the passageways between the fins are so narrow that it's mostly always in shade and is often much cooler than the rest of the park), but because of the flame color it takes on when the late afternoon sun hits the rocks. Which is why the itinerary has you headed there in the late afternoon.

You can only hike into the area with a special back country permit or on ranger-led tour. (This turns your itinerary from a 2-day itinerary into a 3-day itinerary - see Day 3 for details.) For today, just enjoy the views!

DIRECTIONS: Devil's Garden - Fiery Furnace

From the Devil's Garden parking, keep going around the loop. The road rejoins the main two-way Arches NP Road. Fiery Furnace Overlook is 3.5 miles along on the left. There's a small parking area.

DAY 2

AFTERNOON: 2:00PM - 5:30PM

Drive back to Moab 4:35PM

There are several viewpoints along the way that you may not have stopped at yet. In order, these are:

- Salt Valley Overlook (0.6 miles from Fiery Furnace Overlook): look down into Salt Valley and see the different colored ores
- Panorama Point (4.0 miles from Salt Valley Overlook): wide-open views of the La Sal Mountains, Fiery Furnace, and Devil's Garden
- Petrified Dunes Viewpoint (4.4 miles from Panorama Point): distant views of petrified dunes
- La Sal Mountains Viewpoint (3.6 miles from Petrified Dunes Viewpoint): lovely panoramic views of the La Sal Mountains in the distance

Dinner 6:00PM

Use the Dining Guide to find a place for dinner in Moab.

That's the end of your Arches National Park itinerary!

Unless you're hiking Fiery Furnace tomorrow, that's the end of your trip to Arches.

From Moab, it's:

- 45 minutes to Canyonlands National Park (Island in the Sky)
- 1.5 hours to Canyonlands National Park (Needles District)
- 1 hour 45 minutes to Grand Junction
- 2 hours 15 minutes to Mesa Verde National Park
- 2.5 hours to Capitol Reef National Park
- 2 hours 45 minutes to Monument Valley
- 3 hours 45 minutes to Salt Lake City
- 4.5 hours to Bryce Canyon National Park
- 5.5 hours to Grand Canyon (South Rim)

DAY 2

AFTERNOON: 2:00PM - 5:30PM

OPTION B: Dead Horse Point State Park

If you don't feel like hiking in soft sand to see some more arches, then this option is for you. You have now seen everything in Arches National Park that you can without getting out on to the trails. But there is a really great state park nearby that you will love.

Dead Horse Point State Park 2:45PM

Refer to the separate Guide to Dead Horse Point State Park for details on what to see and do there.

DIRECTIONS: Moab - Dead Horse Point State Park

From Moab, take Highway UT-191 north. Drive past the entrance to Arches National Park (or turn right when you exit the park if you're coming directly from there). 6.5 miles after Arches' entrance, turn left on to UT-313. After 14.6 miles, turn left to stay on UT-313. The park's entrance is 7.5 miles further along this road.

Dinner 6:00PM

DAY 3 AT A GLANCE

If you got tickets on a guided hike through Fiery Furnace or got a special back-country permit to hike in Fiery Furnace, then you'll spend a third (half) day in Arches National Park. This will then give you the afternoon to visit nearby Dead Horse Point State Park. (If you went there yesterday afternoon, there is no shortage of other things to do in the Moab area* - it's called The Adventure Capital of America for a reason!)

DAY 3

MORNING: 8:15AM - 2:00PM

Breakfast

Have breakfast at your hotel or campground before leaving.

Fiery Furnace Hike 9:00AM | 9:30AM

You can only hike into the Fiery Furnace with a special back country permit or on ranger-led tour.

If you're an experienced hiker and comfortable navigating, you can go by yourselves. Read about getting Fiery Furnace permits.

The area is a labyrinth and it's easy to get lost, so if you're not an experienced navigator, I recommend a ranger-led tour. Ranger-led guided hikes sell out months in advance, but if you can get a ticket, I highly recommend it.

You can reserve ranger-guided tour tickets for morning hikes up to six months in advance at www.recreation.gov or by calling 877-444-6777 (in North America) or +1 518-885-3639 (international).

It's a little challenging - you will walk and climb on irregular and broken sandstone, along narrow ledges above drop-offs, and in loose sand. There are gaps you have to jump across and narrow places that you'll squeeze into and pull yourself up and through. In some places, you need to hold yourself off the ground by pushing against the sandstone walls with your hands and feet.

There are usually two morning tours (9:00AM and 9:30AM) and they last about 2 hours each.

The ranger shows you the main arches, including a tiny arch that you can crawl through (called Crawl-Through Arch for obvious reasons). You can walk around it much more easily, but you can crawl through it to say you did. Also, Skull Arch, a very cool arch that looks like a skull, and Surprise Arch. The ranger also gives lots of extra information about the park.

DAY 3

MORNING: 8:15AM - 2:00PM

DIRECTIONS: Moab - Fiery Furnace

From Moab, take Highway UT-191 north and cross the Colorado River as you exit town. 1.8 miles after the bridge, you'll see the entrance to Arches National Park on the right. Continue straight for 14.5 miles (approx. 25 minutes). Fiery Furnace is on your right.

Lunch 12:30 | 1:00PM

After the hike, head back to Moab and use the Dining Guide to find somewhere to eat in Moab. Alternatively, you could pack a picnic and head straight to Dead Horse Point State Park and have a picnic lunch there.

DAY 3

AFTERNOON: 2:00PM - 5:30PM

Dead Horse Point State Park 2:45PM

- 2 hours 45 minutes to Monument Valley
- 3 hours 45 minutes to Salt Lake City
- 4.5 hours to Bryce Canyon National Park
- 5.5 hours to Grand Canyon (South Rim)

ADJUSTING YOUR SCHEDULE

The schedule is based on a stay in Moab. Moab has the most accommodation options and is close to the park entrance, so I really recommend staying there. However, if you stay in nearby places, adjust the schedule as follows:

INSIDE ARCHES NATIONAL PARK

Devil's Garden Campground:

DAY 1: Start 10 minutes later

DAY 2: Start 30 minutes later

DAY 3: Start 15 minutes later

CANYONLANDS NATIONAL PARK

Willows Flat Campground: Start each day 45 minutes earlier

Needles District: Start each day 1 hour 30 minutes earlier

DEAD HORSE POINT STATE PARK

Kayenta Campground, Wingate Campground and yurts: Start 35 minutes earlier

SPANISH VALLEY

Spanish Valley: Start each day 15 minutes earlier

ALONG HIGHWAY 128

Big Bend Campground: Start each day 10 minutes earlier

Sorrell River Ranch: Start each day 20 minutes earlier

Castle Valley Inn: Start each day 30 minutes earlier

ALONG HIGHWAY 279

Williams Bottom Campground: Keep the same

Gold Bar Campground: Start each day 10 minutes earlier

GREEN RIVER

Green River: Start each day 45 minutes earlier
